The City of Edinburgh Council Internship Research Program 2025 In Uk

Description

The City of Edinburgh Council Internship Research Program 2025 is designed to provide an opportunity for individuals passionate about research and public service to contribute to impactful projects that shape the future of Edinburgh. Interns will gain valuable experience in local government research, data analysis, policy development, and public services, helping inform decision-making and enhance the city's operations. This program aims to develop the next generation of public sector professionals by providing hands-on learning and career development.

Responsibilities

- Research and Analysis: Assist in conducting research on key public policy areas such as urban development, social services, transportation, and sustainability within Edinburgh.
- Data Collection and Management: Gather, analyze, and interpret data from various sources, including surveys, public consultations, and official records
- Report Writing: Support the preparation of research reports, policy briefs, and presentations for senior management, stakeholders, and the public.
- Collaboration: Work alongside multidisciplinary teams across different departments, contributing to collaborative projects and sharing findings.
- Public Engagement: Assist with organizing public consultations and surveys, gathering feedback to inform policy decisions.
- Project Support: Provide research support for various ongoing council initiatives, including those related to climate change, community health, education, and city planning.
- Administrative Support: Contribute to the administrative aspects of research projects, including scheduling meetings, preparing documents, and tracking project progress.

Qualifications

- Educational Requirements: Applicants must be enrolled in or have recently completed a degree in a relevant field such as Political Science, Public Policy, Urban Studies, Sociology, Economics, Environmental Science, or related disciplines.
- Eligibility: Open to candidates who are legally entitled to work in the UK and are available for the duration of the internship (typically 6-12 months).

Experience

- Desirable Experience: While previous research experience is advantageous, it is not essential. Experience in any form of research, whether academic, professional, or voluntary, will be beneficial.
- Exposure to Public Sector: Familiarity with or an interest in local government, public policy, and urban issues is desirable but not required.
